"Cradle To The Grave"

One of the great catch-phrases of the time is "social security". Its more zealous advocates envision a society in which the individual will be protected, by government, against every possible contingency or misfortune. What these advocates do not point out is that social security on a wholesale scale leads inevitably to limitations on an individual's liberties, to an incredibly costly bureaucracy, and to the creation of a super-state which tends more and more to dictatorship to achieve its ends.

The British Information Services has published an interesting booklet, in which Britain's National Insurance Act, which will come into full effect next year, is described. Under this act, the booklet says, "Every person in Britain has complete social security 'from the cradle to the grave.' This is carried out on a compulsory insurance basis, the funds being contributed by everyone who earns or receives an income. . . The benefits. . . will include unemployment pay, sickness pay, maternity and widows' benefits, guardians' allowances (for orphans), retirement pensions, and death grants. . . Under a separate but related act, children's allowances are now paid to everyone in Britain, starting with the second child."

There is as complete a program of social security as the mind can imagine. It was one of the main planks in the platform on which the Labor government came to power. To the unwary, it is obviously attractive, and holds promise of a utopia on earth. But the plain fact is that such a program cannot possibly be accomplished unless the government is given complete control over all the resources, energies and policies of the country. It must be able to tell capital, labor and agriculture what to do and when. It must substitute a planned economy for a free enterprise economy. When government assumes the responsibility for economic protection for everyone, no matter what happens, government must become the dominant factor in the life of the people—men, women and children become the wards of the state.

England has chosen a dubious form of so-called security in the place of freedom. It has chosen a type of government in which the state is all-powerful and dictatorial policies are becoming commonplace. In the United States, there are many glib speakers and writers who would import the socialistic philosophy for our use. Let us hope that the American people, who can see what dictatorship in various forms and degrees is doing to more than half the world, will choose to retain the American tradition and to reject the concepts of the slave states.

Costs and Dollars

In a recently address, J. Carter Fort of the Association of American Railroads, dealt with some economic facts which may come as a surprise to the average citizen.

The railroads, he said, are the victims of a dracully out-of-balance price structure. Since 1939, commodity prices and labor costs in general have increased from 60 to more than 100 per cent. Yet, in that period, freight charges have gone up only 17½ per cent. This means that, judged in terms of prewar dollars, railroad freight rates are now 30 to 40 per cent less than they were before the war. And freight charges represent a much smaller part of the delivered value of commodities than in 1940 and other comparable years.

The railroads are still selling service at a price which is not much greater than in the prewar era—and must pay postwar labor, material and all other costs in order to provide it. The end result, if it were continued long enough, would be financial ruin for the industry. That, in substance, is the basis of the railroads' application to the Interstate Commerce Commission for a freight rate increase which will provide the revenues for needed expansion, and will pay a moderate return on the lines' property investment.

Railroad rates—like all other prices—must reflect the going cost of carrying on the business. The wage increases granted railroad labor have been based on the fact that the cost of living has made higher pay for workers necessary. What is true for an individual is equally true for the industry which employs him. As Mr. Fort put it, "There is only one way to avoid the impoverishment of the railroad industry, and that is to recognize that the dollars it takes in now as freight charges are worth only a fraction of prewar dollars, and to make a corresponding adjustment of the level of freight rates."

The railroads cannot exist on the prewar dollar any better than can the wage earner.

Have We Enough Electric Power

A committee of experts recently completed an exhaustive survey of the nation's electric power supply and the growth of demand. The findings, which are of countrywide interest, have been released by the Edison Electric Institute.

First of all, there is little likelihood of serious power shortages now or in the future. When the winter peak demand occurs in December, there will be a margin of reserve capacity of about 5 per cent for the country as a whole.

From the long-pull standpoint, the most interesting part of the experts' survey deals with the huge construction program now being carried on by the utility industry. Two months ago, installation of new generating capacity caught up with the growth of new power demand, and is now substantially exceeding it. The program will extend over a period of five years, and its goal is to establish a reserve capacity of 15 to 25 per cent.

To achieve that, 18,000,000 kilowatts of new generating capacity will be added by the end of 1951. And it may come as a surprise to those who have been confused by all the talk about public power to learn that more than 15,000,000 of those kilowatts will be installed by privately-owned companies. The electric industry is going quietly ahead and spending billions to serve the needs of America. It is creating enormous taxable assets for all units of government, instead of tax-exempt, special privilege properties such as the Federal power projects. It is selling the power at extremely low rates which must be approved by public regulatory agencies. It is demonstrating again that private enterprise works.

SHORT STORY

A Haven For Mannie

By ANNA E. WILSON

WIND, broad-shouldered Joel said, was just air in motion; all wind was the same. But Mannie, putting a tired hand to her head, pressing it against that spot of pain above her eye, decided that Joel must be wrong. There were all kinds of wind; but the worst was this wind that blew for days until it got into your head and burned a tight band about your forehead.

Joel came in to dinner. "It must let up soon, Mannie. It's never blown this long before."

"I'll never stop, Joel." Joel's kind, blunt face looked worried. "We've got a good start here, Mannie. You like it here when the wind doesn't blow. Maybe running away isn't the solution. Maybe any other kind of life would have drawbacks too, Mannie. Seems like we might find a better way."

"You can't stop the wind, Joel." When Joel had gone, Mannie washed the dishes, the pain above her eye becoming each moment more unbearable. She reached for an aspirin, thinking of Joel, and stopped. It did no good to say the wind wouldn't blow tomorrow, there'd be the next year and the next.

Joel could sell the ranch and get work in a factory. She could see him in 15 years, his shoulders stooped, his hair thinner and the swing gone from his walk.

Joel wouldn't blame her, but he wouldn't be happy. Joel would never be happy anywhere away from the prairie. That was what made it so hard, so impossible for her.

She looked out and nowhere was there anything but sameness, nowhere except that old bluff, bordering Dead Man's canyon, a deep cleft sheltering a slough.

ROANIE was surprised at being saddled so early in the day. He jumped as spurs dug into him and he swung around and headed into the wind. When Mannie came to the bluff she reined in Roanie and sat looking down into the canyon. It was narrow, steep with few footholds.

She slid down from Roanie and looked down to where a thin silver of light, water, was barely visible—it was quiet down there—the wind could never reach you. She began to climb down, her feet slipping on the shale and stone. She rolled down the last 20 feet ignominiously.

She lay quiet on a tiny beach, relief seeping through her. The sun was warm and she relaxed and slept, like a limp rag on the sand.

WHEN she woke clean-eyed, clear-headed, the sun was slanting against the wall. It was time to get back. She could stand the wind now; she could stand anything. She glanced upwards and caught her breath. Nowhere was there a single foothold.

She proceeded cautiously, examining the walls, coming at last to a shelving cave. Above the entrance was printed in rough letters: Windhaven.

Windhaven. Someone had been here before her. Someone had come here to escape from the wind, just as she had come.

She advanced farther into the cave and her foot struck a light object—a comb that some woman might have worn. If a woman had come here years ago, she must have had some way of getting back. Mannie hunted furiously.

It was simple when she found it. A rough hair rope, hidden by the side of the boulder, exactly the same color as rock and shale. She seized it and began to climb. She gripped the rope's end and it shored securely by a huge rock, invisible to those above. She pulled herself over the rim of the canyon. She heard a nicker farther along and rounded a curve to find Roanie grazing.

She rode him with the wind behind her—but it was no longer a fearsome thing, something from which there was no escape but in flight. Windhaven—she had only to climb down the canyon to sleep securely on the small, dry beach. Why they could spend whole days there, she and Joel.

Joel would never be happy away from the prairie.

Trapped in Ruins 17 Days, Dog Rescued Uninjured

NEW YORK.—Two-year-old Teddy, part Spitz, was rescued from the ruins of a four-story tenement which collapsed 17 days previously after boys who noticed a widening crack in the structure gave the alarm in time for all the tenants to escape.

Neighbors reported to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals that they thought the little dog was trapped and an SPCA agent, who had checked the ruins regularly, finally spotted the frightened animal on a stair landing. Thin, but with his tail wagging, Teddy licked the hands of his rescuers. Apparently he was uninjured.

Two Admit Slaying Tourist for Money

Couple Lures Man Into Woods And Bludgeons Him.

LAS VEGAS, NEV.—Joseph L. Hardy, 24, and his wife of three days, the former Lois Hunt, 22, confessed at a religious service in the local jail that they lured a vacationist into a lonely forest glade and killed him.

The man they confessed murdering was James W. McLain, who was on a solo trip by automobile when he met Hardy and his wife. McLain was shot by Hardy while the girl was sitting on a blanket with McLain and kissing him so he could not see the gun. He was shot through the left ear.

"Lois then moved away from him and I could see he was not dead so I shot him two more times," Hardy said in his confession.

"He still was breathing so I hit him on the head with a large rock," Notes intercepted between Hardy and Lois in the jail intimated they also were responsible for slayings in Chicago, Louisiana and Missouri.

Hardy, dishonorably discharged army veteran from Hartford, Conn., said they met McLain in Reno.

"He talked so much and gave the impression of being a rich bachelor that we decided to get his money," Hardy said.

He said McLain eventually told of a desolate spot in California where he wished to take the woman.

Hardy said they walked about a quarter of a mile from the highway 10 miles north of Truckee, Calif., and McLain took the girl in his arms.

"I was nervous and would have backed out if it hadn't been for Lois," he said.

The couple took $200 from McLain's body and drove to Reno in McLain's car, they said. After a night of drinking and gambling they drove to Las Vegas and were married.

On information furnished by Hardy, McLain's body was found wrapped in an Indian blanket.

Hardy said they took McLain's automobile and threw the fatal weapon into Big Lake.

Girl, 2, Plunges 30 Feet, Suffers Bump on Her Head

DETROIT.—Something outside a second-story window attracted the attention of 2-year-old Louise Stemplewski as she played in her bedroom.

She removed the screen and leaned far out, ignoring the 30-foot drop to the pavement below.

Her 5-year-old sister Joan, playing in the yard below, saw her and screamed.

Louise plummeted out the window, turned over twice in midair, and crashed into the concrete walk.

Attracted by the scream, the children's mother, Mrs. Julian Stemplewski, rushed to the child and called for someone to "get the doctor."

Louise struggled to her feet.

Now she's proudly displaying the bump on her head to the neighborhood children.

Man Caught-Hiding Five Years From Military Draft

HOOD RIVER, ORE.—A heavily bearded man with shoulder-length hair was in the county jail here after what the FBI said was a five-year hideout from military service.

Sheriff Rupert L. Gillmouthe identified the man as Sheridan Grant Delepine, 48, of Hood River, and FBI agents said he last was seen walking away from a bus that was to take draftees to an induction center in August, 1942.

The sheriff said Delepine was arrested on the city outskirts in a small cabin, which he had left rarely in the last five years. Neighbors said they had never seen him.

Nagged for 15 Years, Wife Strangler Tells the Police

PLAINFIELD, N. J.—A 57-year-old photographer confessed to police that he strangled his wife with a dog leash last April 18, stuffed her nude body in a trunk and drove 40 miles to Keyport where he dumped the trunk on a country road.

Police said that Philip Schrell, arrested recently when he returned home from his job in New York, told them he killed his wife of 32 years, Anna, 50, because she had nagged him for 15 years.

Tenant-Killing Landlord

Sentenced, Unrepentant

SAN FRANCISCO.—Jacob Watson, 63-year-old landlord who shot two of his tenants to death because "they made too much noise," was sentenced to prison for five years to life.

The former Watsonville rancher—who told police after the shooting, "I'm not a bit sorry,"—pleaded guilty to second degree murder.

Watson shot Harold Collins, 40, and Estelle Lincoln, 33, February 17 and declared, "I'll bet it's quiet out there this morning."

Man Attempting Suicide

Dies of a Heart Attack

POINT PLEASANT, W. VA.—Coroner R. W. Eshenaur said that Victor Bradshaw, 33, died of a heart attack while attempting suicide.

Eshenaur said that the wound was not deep enough to reach the heart.

SHORT STORY

The Barrier Collapses

By JOHN ADLINGTON

THE Rev. Mr. Jones claimed that the stronger the relationship between two men, the wider the rift if anything happened to break the bond. He said it was human nature, and he liked to tell about Frank Holly and George Clyde to prove his point.

The two men had been neighbors and the closest of friends all their lives. It was the same with their wives, and when Jim Holly and Betty Clyde came on the scene, the two youngsters grew up as much at home in each other's houses as in their own. It didn't seem possible that anything could come between the two men. Yet they did fall out, and the cause was so trivial folks couldn't believe it.

The Clyde farm and the Holly place adjoined each other, sort of back to back, and the line fence between them was an old rail affair that a new-born lamb could have climbed over easy almost any place. So one day, just before seeding time, the two men got together and decided to replace it with a brand new wire fence. When they had finished both men stood around telling each other what a neat job they'd done.

"She's as straight as a gunbarrel," says George Clyde, squinting down the row of posts.

"Sure is," agreed Frank Holly, taking a look at the place he'd ground a little. "You ever about a foot too far on my side."

He said it joking like, and if George had let it pass there would have been no harm done. But one word led to another, and first thing they knew both men were yelling and shouting at the top of their voices. When each of them finally grabbed up his tools and headed for the barn, the most beautiful friendship in Reeler county was busted wide open. And no one could do anything about it.

Their wives tried hard enough. But it was no use. The truth was both knew they were acting like idiots, but each was too stubborn to make the first move. After the quarrel they both got so cranky there was no living with them. And they took it out on the two youngsters.

BUT human nature is human nature, and before the year was over, Jim and Betty were meeting in town on Saturday nights, and sort of hanging around together after church. Everybody could see the way it was with them, except their fathers. The Rev. Mr. Jones tried to get in a word with Frank and George on the matter, but it didn't do a bit of good, and there's no telling what way things would have gone if it hadn't been for Frank's old bay mare.

George Clyde was at the barn doctoring some shoats when his wife and Betty came rushing in. "Mrs. Holly just phoned," said his wife, Everybody could see the way it was with Jim and Betty.

all out of breath. "She says she was down the lane when she saw their old bay mare on her back, all tangled up in the line fence. Frank and Jim are in town, and she's afraid the poor thing will cut her neck to pieces time they get back. She thought maybe you'd do something about it."

"Holly can look after his own horse," says George. "Why, Dad!" Betty horrified, and the next minute she tears out of the barn as fast as she can. She stops long at the drive shed to grab a hammer and a pair of wire cutters, and disappears down the lane. It doesn't take long for George and his wife to follow her. By the time they reached the back pasture, Betty had released the poor beast that had caused all the commotion. Mrs. Holly was there, too, fussing over the animal. And that's the way it was when Jim and his Dad rattled up in the truck.

It was George who rose to the occasion.

"Frank," he says, a bit on the shaky side, "I don't know how to tell you, but I've been less than that dumb brute today. If we let it keep these youngsters the way, Frank seemed at a loss to know how he contrived a grin.

Dog Leads Blind Woman

From Wrecked Street Car

PHILADELPHIA. — Two trolleys collided, injuring 13 persons, and through the turmoil inside one of the cars a Seeing Eye dog led his blind mistress to the street uninjured.

Almost all windows in both cars were broken in the crash and glass showered Grace Ochsefelder, 38, and the other passengers. Occupants were tossed in all directions.

"Pal must have sensed that the accident was coming," Miss Ochsefelder said. "Then people began to scream. I got up and Pal drew me through the crowd to the center door. The conductor opened it and I was the first one off."

'Busted With Wife,' Trucker Tells Pals

Asks Their Help in Disposing of Woman's Body.

PITTSBURGH. — His companions laughed when Robert Herman, 28, asked them to help him "get rid of the body of my old woman."

Then he showed them the body and went to the police station with them.

Herman asked two fellow truck drivers to come up to his apartment.

"Busted up with my wife," he explained.

On the way, Herman asked his friends, Bill Bishop, 35, and Steve Schumacher, 47:

"What can a guy get for killing his old woman?"

"Plenty," they replied, laughing.

"Okay," said Herman, "when we get there you can help me get rid of the body."

His friends laughed.

"He's a great kidder," said one.

The three sat in the kitchen drinking beer for about 20 minutes when Herman led them to the bedroom.

The body of his wife, Frances, 20, was sprawled across the bed.

"How did you do it?" Bishop asked.

Herman put his hands together and went "Skrrrk."

At the police station, he said he had strangled his wife during an argument.

His Home 'Fenced In,' Man

Tries to Wipe Out Family

MAPLEWOOD, N. J.—Police posted a guard at the hospital bed of a retired jeweler who, they said, tried to wipe out his entire family because a 130-unit apartment development was "fencing in" the 2½-story frame dwelling he had spent 30 years in beautifying.

Police said that Frederick F. Dieter, 76, had signed a statement saying he had shot and killed his son and seriously wounded his wife and daughter-in-law because he was certain his family's privacy and comfort were now at an end and he "didn't want to leave behind anybody I loved."

Dieter himself suffered bullet wounds in the head and right hand, the first being the result of what police said was a suicide attempt and the second the climax of a 20 minute gun duel in which his weapon was shot from his grip. Police Capt. Howard Dowd said that Dieter came out then from the cellar of his home shouting, "Don't hurt me. I'm an old man."

Beat of Heart Breaks

Silence in 'Dead Room'

MURRAY HILL, N. J.—A "dead room" which is so quiet that a pin-drop can be heard before the pin hits the floor has been created here.

Even the beat of a heart will break dead silence in the laboratory, designed by Bell Telephone laboratories for sound experimentation. A watch-tick sounds like a riveting machine.

In order to kill the noise which ordinarily would come from air conditioning equipment, engineers of Bell and Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator company designed an elaborate control system. Outside air passes through a labyrinthine tunnel which traps sound in sharp corners.

If these precautions were not taken, even the air waves would create a noise comparable to rolls of thunder outside.

Husband Injured Flagging

Train to Get Aid in Attack

CLEVELAND. — Robert Wilson, 28, was injured critically when he ran in front of a train here while trying to summon help in protecting his wife from a would-be rapist. He suffered a skull fracture as he attempted to flag down the train. Meanwhile, Mrs. Wilson's screams and the stopped train frightened away the attacker.

The money, intended for a trip, was missing when he picked up the trousers. The cleaners knew nothing about the loss.

Veterans News

Public Law 239 of the 80th Congress, which expressly repealed certain wartime statutes, did not terminate reemployment rights for veterans reenlisting in the armed forces within 90 days after discharge, Arthur G. Adams, Illinois Veterans Commission service officer in Lake County, pointed out today.

Such veterans are entitled to be restored, upon completion of their enlistments, to the position held prior to their original service, provided they meet certain conditions of the Selective Training and Service Act of 1940, as amended.

These rights prevail, even though the veteran does not apply for reinstatement to his former job during the period between discharge and enlistment.

Mr. Adams, whose office is located at The American Legion Home, Waukegan, will assist any veteran or veteran's dependent in obtaining the rights and benefits to which they are entitled under state and Federal law.

Naming the Apricot

China is the native home of the apricot, and the name given it by Linnaeus (Prunus armeniaca) is a misnomer arising from the fact that the fruit became known to Europeans when Alexander the Great brought it from Armenia to Greece.

Wife's Flashing of Mirror

Summons Doctor From Sky
CARROLLTON, GA. — Many times in medical history doctors' wives have ridden through the snow or frantically telephoned for their husbands when a patient was seriously sick.

Mrs. J. W. Watts, wife of a Bowden, Ga., doctor, claimed a new method. She brought her husband down from an airplane by reflecting the sun's rays in his face through a tiny pocket mirror.

Luana Dukes, farmhand, had been bitten by a rattlesnake. About that time her husband, a plane enthusiast, flew over. Mrs. Watts took out her pocket mirror and signaled to him in Morse code. The doctor landed and administered shots.

Admits Thrusting

Sons' Hands on Stove

Mother Says They Took Money From Her Purse.

DETROIT. — "Sometimes you do things without knowing what you are doing," Mrs. Phyllis Paprotske told police. She admitted what she had done was to punish her two young sons by forcing their hands down on a hot electric stove.

The incident came to light when Joseph Rzepka, walking past the Cattalo homes playfield, saw the two boys playing on the swings. He noticed that they hooked their wrists over the lines, seemingly unable to use their hands.

Rzepka questioned the children and they showed him their hands. The blisters and sores had not even been bound, he told police.

"Mother burned us on the stove because we took some money from her purse for ice cream and candy," the children explained, according to Rzepka.

He notified the manager of the housing project, who called police. When officers went to the Paprotske home, the mother first told them the boys burned their hands "cooking some eggs." She refused to let them question the children unless she was present.

It was David who blurted out the story of the cruel punishment, officers said.

Mrs. Paprotske was taken with the children to the women's division. There she admitted the charge, police said, claiming it was punishment for the children's theft of $8 from her purse.

Her husband, Edward, who married her four years ago, said the boys had been a "great problem" to them.

"They'll do anything the neighbor's kids tell them to do," he said.

Boy's Test With a Bottle

And Dry Ice Costs His Life

ALAMEDA, CALIF. — A boyish "experiment" with a piece of dry ice and an empty wine bottle resulted in the death of a 12-year-old Alameda youngster.

Richard La Fave, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert La Fave, begged a piece of dry ice from an ice cream vendor. He juggled it from hand to hand, marveling at its extreme cold.

Then he put the ice in an empty wine bottle and capped it tight to see what would happen. In a short time the bottle exploded from the pressure caused by released gas, driving jagged fragments of glass into his body. He died from loss of blood en route to an emergency hospital.

German T. B. Cases Jump 50

Per Cent, Gen. Clay Says

BERLIN. — Tuberculosis, the No. 1 disease problem in Germany, has increased more than 50 per cent in the U. S. zone in the last year, Gen. Lucius D. Clay's monthly report said.

Close to 14,500 cases of open, infectious tuberculosis are walking the streets because hospital facilities are unavailable, it said, and this "must be regarded with grave concern."

Clay said the weekly average of new cases of pulmonary tuberculosis increased from 925 per week in March to 1,259 in May, far in excess of the weekly average of 578 in May a year ago.

The known cases of active tuberculosis of the lung and larynx under medical supervision increased from 93,821 in July last year to 121,842 in April, 1947. Of these, the report said 35,539 were classed as open, infectious cases.

Slightly more than 21,000 beds are available for isolation and treatment of tuberculosis patients in hospitals, the report continued.

Children in Theater Fire

March Out Safely Singing

CAMDEN, N. J. — Fifty children singing songs projected on a screen were told that there was a fire in the theater's projection booth and marched safely outside without interrupting their vocal harmony.

Morris W. Cummings, manager, said he discovered the fire in the 300-seat Elm theater, hurriedly opened the exit doors and instructed the children to leave.

John Armstrong, projectionist, was singing by the flames.

Children Kept Caged for Years By Aged Mother

'Perfect Landlady' Explains She Wanted to Know Where They Were.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN. — Freed from shackles and cages in which their 72-year-old mother had held them for many years, two middle-aged brothers and a sister ate ravenously in a hospital.

The mother's explanation of the dreadful situation was that she "wanted to know where they were." The mother, Mrs. Bertha Anderson, was known as a religious woman who played the organ for visiting revivalists and gave tenants two weeks' free rent each Christmas.

"They're my kids, aren't they?" she said. "I've got a right to do what I want with them."

Police, who entered her home on a neighbor's tip, found Martin Anderson, 42, caged in a chicken-wire enclosure upstairs. Nearby, tied to a dirty and bare cot, was his brother, Clarence, 38.

Locked in Attic.

The sister, Violet, 35, was locked in an attic room with a sack over her head.

All were thin and dirty. Violet was eating from a tin can, using the cover for a spoon. They mumbled incoherently and police said they were almost too weak to walk.

Probate court records showed all three had been adjudged incompetent mentally. Guardianship over them has shifted frequently during the last 20 years between Mrs. Anderson and another son, Walter, who also was to be questioned.

Police are seeking four other children, including a son, Earl, whom Mrs. Anderson said was "subject to spells" and also was under her care.

She said she permitted him freedom of the house and let him out "once in a while."

Police said Clarence had been locked up 18 years, Martin 15 years, and Violet 2 years.

Court records showed Mrs. Anderson's husband, Hans, died in 1916, leaving an estate of almost $50,000. His will gave Mrs. Anderson a third and divided the remainder among the eight children.

Clarence was adjudged incompetent in 1925. Martin in 1928 and Violet in October, 1943.

Mrs. Anderson said she had employed "22 Minneapolis lawyers" to handle the involved manipulations of the estate in the last 20 years.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Bay Trelawney, who live on the first floor of Mrs. Anderson's home, said she was a "perfect landlady." They never knew of the imprisonments, they said, although they had lived there three years.

Insurance policies were found covering all but one of Mrs. Anderson's eight children for a total of $16,000.

Plant Trees by Air

Pine tree seeds are now planted by air. Inserted in split lead weights, they sink upon reaching the ground.

Farm Housing Need
Almost two-thirds of the farm houses in the United States would have to be either enlarged, repaired or replaced before all farm families could have the kind of housing that middle-income city people take for granted.

Yesterdays

52 Years Ago
A blizzard struck this section Monday night delaying railway traffic, etc. About 18 inches of snow fell but it drifted badly, making sleighing very poor.

A. Chinn visited his Englewood property last Saturday and is quite favorably impressed with it. He thinks Englewood is a coming residence place of the cities near Chicago.

Mrs. Harry Osmond, of Richmond, was in town Wednesday visiting her father, J. C. James, Sr.

A disgraceful exhibition of reckless horse driving was given on our streets Sunday evening, just as people were returning from church.

This is the day we return thanks to the subscribers who resolve that tomorrow they will come and call at the News office and pay their subscription.

12 Years Ago
Miss Agnes Christensen and brother, Arthur, left Saturday for Los Angeles, Calif., where they will spend the winter with their brothers, Norman and Charles.
Students home for Thanksgiving were Jane M. Warriner and John C. Brogan.

The Works Progress Administration swung into action in Lake County this week with about 1,900 men and women given employment on 35 projects.

The Future Farmers and the Home Economics Clubs presented the play "O Kay", with the following cast: Virginia Norman, Elaine Hennings; Fred Mico, John Turnock, Betty Lou Williams, Winnie Mae Manning, Ray Hills, Sidney Hughes and Donald Minto.

Adolph Krahl, a former pastor of the Antioch Methodist church, spoke at the annual Thanksgiving homecoming Sunday. Besides Mr. Krahl's address the afternoon program was featured with musical selections by Miss Una Nelson and Mrs. H. B. Gaston and short talks by Miss Ella Ames, J. C. James, S. E. Pollock and W. C. Petty. Mrs. Nason Sibley, Mrs. A. J. Felter and Mrs. L. O. Bright composed the program committee with the Rev. Sittler in charge.

Grecian Cherries
The Greeks cultivated cherry trees as early as 300 B. C.

Spoils of Battle
The battle of Towton, in which Charles Martel defeated the Saracens in 732, is considered as having contributed to horse breeding in La Perche and Normandy. When the spoils of war were distributed, many Saracen horses went to these provinces, where they were crossed with the mares of Brittany. On the luxuriant pastures of France a draft horse known as the Percheron was developed.

Research Pays Off
Fattening beef cattle through procedures developed by the Kansas station, which utilize maximum use of silage and hay, has reduced grain requirements to about one-third that consumed on a full-grain feeding plan; this results in a saving per steer of approximately 1,200 pounds of grain. General application of the method to the approximately 200,000 head of grain-fed cattle marketed each year from Kansas alone could result in a saving of five million dollars annually.

Many Synthetic Fibers
No longer is rayon the only commercially accepted synthetic fiber. Glass, vinyon, nylon, aralac, all these have proved their values as textile fibers. They often are used in combination with cotton and wool and may be had in many combinations. Since introduction of rayon in 1911, it has increased in volume so that it now ranks second only to cotton in the amount produced.

Crime-Detecting Device
Cleveland police department is the first in the world to use faxfilm as a crime-detecting device. With a narrow ribbon of plastic, softened by a liquid solvent, an exact negative impression of any scratch on a crime scene can be made in about 45 seconds. The record can be kept on file, and when a tool is picked up that could be the one figuring in the job, another set of scratches can be made in the same material and the two "signatures" can be matched.

So the Blind May See
New telescopic spectacles are devices which enable the near-blind to achieve a degree of visual acuity which will permit them to have more useful vision. As the name indicates, they are based on the principle of the telescope lens system. Microscopic systems are used in spectacles where high magnification is needed for near point work.

MAN LOOKING FOR TROUBLE

With the central office testman on the job, trouble on your telephone line doesn't get a chance to last very long.

At his special switchboard, called a test desk, the testman keeps an eye on every customer's line. Using precision devices, he can spot a flaw or weakness on your line and often can have it corrected before you're aware of it. This checking and repairing is what telephone men call "preventive maintenance."

Looking for trouble before it happens has paid off. In 1926 a telephone was reported "in trouble" once every five months, on the average. Now the average is only once every two years.

With experts and instruments like these, Illinois Bell is keeping your telephone service dependable and trying always to make it more valuable to you.

Problems of Tax Bills
To Be Studied Dec. 5
In T. F. I. Conference

The county clerk and the state's attorney of every county in the state have been invited by the Taxpayers' Federation of Illinois to attend an "Information Please" program on Wednesday, Dec. 3, at 2 o'clock in the Centennial Building here, to discuss problems involved in making out the next tax bills.

It is openly admitted that the formulae and the interpretation of House Bill 513 are intricate and in order that there may be uniformity in its state-wide interpretation, George E. Mahin, Executive Secretary of the Federation has asked all the State's Attorneys and the County Clerks of Illinois to review this new law.

In order to give these elective officers of each county the best legal advice, the "Board of Experts" will include Representative Orville Hodges, chief sponsor of House Bill 513; Senator Merritt Little, chairman of the Commission on Revenue Laws; Robert S. Cushman of the law firm of Scott, MacLeish and Falk, Harold Norman of the law firm of Zimmerman and Norman; Sidney Blanc, president, Western Association of Railway Tax Commissioners; Lynn Stiles, Research Supervisor, Property Tax Division, State Department of Revenue; Paul Mathias, Secretary, Illinois Agricultural Association; Maurice W. Scott, attorney in charge of legal research for the Taxpayers' Federation of Illinois.

Asked To Submit Questions
These county officials have already been asked by the Taxpayers' Federation to submit questions which at this time they are not sure how to interpret.

For example, there is no unanimity as to what the rights of the taxpayers are in regard to questions such as these:

(1) School has certified its levy but did not include a levy for contribution to Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund (25c per $100). Can levy be amended, or what is to be done?

(2) Under limit of Par. 2 of old Sec. 162a of Revenue Act, may a rate sufficient to produce 10% of the maximum 1942 tax be added to the product of the 1942 ratio and the 1942 rate limit?

It is the consensus of most of these county elective officers that they owe this obligation of interpretation to the taxpayers in their counties and that there should be this state-wide uniformity of operation.

It is quite possible that in some instances it will be necessary that deputies representing either the State's Attorney or the County Clerk, even in some instances both, attend the meeting to carry back to their county seats the finding of this "Board of Experts."

William Cole, 83,
Dies at Solon Mills

William Cole, 83, well-known resident of the locality passed away Wednesday morning at Solon Mills, after a long period of illness.

Mr. Cole had made his home at Wilmet, Wisconsin, for the past five years having moved there from Richmond, where he had been engaged in the well drilling business. He was later engaged in the carpenter contracting business in Louisiana, returning to the region to make his home at Wilmet.

He is survived by his wife, Anna, and a brother, Chase Cole of Richmond.

Funeral services were held at Richmond from the Ehorn funeral home on Saturday. Burial was at the Cole cemetery near Spring Grove, Ill.

One man said that for 10 years he felt like he had a brick in his stomach, due to undigested food he ate. Mrs. Livingstone insists that her husband's relatives live in a small room which formerly housed servants, and she and her daughters, Caroline, tremble with fear at the thought of their wealthy friends' reactions to the awkward country girl and Grady Nichols. But there is one of Caroline's friends who sees Lena's potential worth—it is Durward Bellmont, whom Mrs. Livingstone plans to marry to her daughter, Caroline.

Cooperative Oil Well
Oklahoma's first oil well, the Nelly Johnstone at Bartlesville, now is owned by a cooperative association. This well recently passed its 50th anniversary with ceremonies initiated by the city of Bartlesville. Even though the flow of oil is only just about sufficient to defray expense of maintenance the cooperative continues its more than 50 years of uninterrupted production because of the well's historical interest.

tion, Lena and her grandmother are subject to the sort of treatment that is usually handed out to poor relations. Mrs. Livingstone insists that her husband's relatives live in a small room which formerly housed servants, and she and her daughters, Caroline, tremble with fear at the thought of their wealthy friends' reactions to the awkward country girl and Grady Nichols. But there is one of Caroline's friends who sees Lena's potential worth—it is Durward Bellmont, whom Mrs. Livingstone plans to marry to her daughter, Caroline.

Durward becomes enamoured of Lena and starts to pay her attentions, much to the astonishment of the wealthy Livingstones, who do everything they can to place Lena in a false position. The younger Livingstone daughter, Anna, and her brother, John Junior, become Lena's firm friends and champion her cause, and Lena, in turn, aids Anna and helps along her romance with Malcolm Everett, a tutor in the Livingstone household. In the last Act, when it looks as though Lena were going to lose Durward, Fate steps in and proves our heroine's sterling worth, and the denouement at the end of the play is startling indeed.

Growers producing 800 to 1,000 pounds per acre should realize around $50 to the acre. As okra is practically immune to disease and insects, except nematodes, it can be grown on a wide range of soil. It is believed that it will prove a profitable crop in the south.
